MONTANA KAIMIN

University of Montana
Missoula, Montana

AN INDEPENDENT DAILY NEWSPAPER

Tues., Feb. 20, 1968
Vol. 70, No. 65

THESE FOUR UM coeds were chosen Sunday to represent UM in the State Miss Wool pageant.

Johnson, James
Predicted to Win

Predictions that Republican Ted James and Democrat Forrest Anderson will be nominees in the State Election, and that Mr. James will be elected governor were made by Thomas Payne, political science professor, last night at the "Conflux" meeting in the Latter-day Saints Institute.

Mr. Payne also predicted that Democratic incumbent Pres. Johnson and Republican Richard Nixon will be nominated at the federal level, and Pres. Johnson will win the 1968 election. He predicted that the Republicans will dominate the House and that the Democrats will dominate the Senate.

In the state election the "older wing" supports Mr. James and the more recent is for Gov. Babcock. The issues on the state scene are money and where it is going to come from, as well as the sales tax debate, he said.

Mr. Payne said Pres. Johnson suffers from a credibility gap. He, however, has the advantage of being the incumbent president and this will play an important part in the election. Incumbents can capture more attention than the opponents, he added.

The two issues which face Pres. Johnson, the Vietnam War and the Negro ghettos, present a confusing picture, Mr. Payne said. Most Americans support the present policy but they would like to have the war ended.

Mr. Payne said that Sen. Eugene McCarthy lacks the image and style that could make him a serious contender.

Richard Nixon has a loser image, Mr. Payne said. He has to win in the primaries to convince the party leaders that he is a winner. This year he is more relaxed and is an excellent speaker.

Four Students
Nominated as Kaimin Editors

Gary Langley, Marilyn Pelo, Ken Robertson and Valerie Siphers were nominated by Publications Board yesterday for Montana Kaimin associate editors.

If approved by Central Board, they will assume the positions spring quarter.

Langley, a junior in journalism from Livingston, has been a Montana Kaimin reporter, and has worked for the Livingston Enterprise and the Missoulian.

Miss Pelo, a sophomore journalism major from Great Falls, suggested more and better pictures as a way to improve the appearance of the Montana Kaimin. She sees group requirements and the fate of the experimental college as future campus issues.

Robertson, a sophomore in journalism from Helena, said the faculty should discuss campus issues more freely with students. He also suggested more pictures be used in the Montana Kaimin.

Miss Siphers is a journalism junior from Stevensville. She feels there should be more Associated Press articles on the front page.

Art Lindstrom, a junior in journalism from Missoula, was recommended to Central Board to fill the vacated position of Montana Kaimin photographer for the rest of the quarter.

Miller Hall Fights
Denial of Request
For 'Open Dorm'

Miller Hall Wing Chairmen last night said the negative reply by Dormitory Council to their "open dorm" request was "unacceptable."

The "open dorm" request would allow escorted women in the living and social areas of Miller Hall on weekends.

The Dormitory Council reply said the rights of a roommate of a student with a female visitor would be infringed upon as would the rights of other students in the hall who might wish to go to the shower in various stages of undress.

The reply also pointed out that a $3 to $4 fee increase for Miller Hall residents would be required to enforce the rules of the "open dorm" policy.

"It just may be that the Dormitory Council, in turning down your request for an open dorm policy in Miller Hall, is striking a blow for upper class student freedom—freedom in the choice of living situations," the reply concluded.

Sam Kitzenberg, Miller Hall president, said contrarily the "open dorm" policy would create a greater choice of living situations because Miller Hall would be the only "open dorm."

UM Coeds Favor
Increase in Fees

Two-thirds of the women students who participated in a recent poll, voted in favor of a $1.50 fee increase for women to be allotted to AWS, Margaret Borg, AWS president, announced at a meeting yesterday.

More than half of the UM women were polled, Miss Borg said. 617 were in favor of the measure and 262 against. Brantly Hall and Alpha Omicron Pi were the only living groups that defeated the measure.

Miss Borg said Robert Pantzer, UM president, will take the results of the poll to the Board of Regents meeting in April and said she could see no reason why they would not approve it.

"We have a better percentage of women students voting than Bozeman AWS had in a similar election, which the Board approved," she said.

'Vagabond Poet' to Read Works

BY MARK THOMPSON
Montana Kaimin Reporter

Negro poet Edward English said, "People used to call me a protest poet until they read my poetry and couldn't find any protest in it. Then they called me a folk poet, and now they just call me a vagabond poet."

Mr. English will read his religious poetry at 8 tonight in Journalism 301. In his travels he has crossed the United States three times, made a trip to Canada, and in November he returned from a five months visit to Central America.

He was a house painter before he turned completely to writing in 1959.

In 1966 Mr. English was asked by the Congress of Racial Equality to help raise money for Negroes in Alabama who had been put off the land they rented for registering to vote.

The Negroes were working land under a rental system known as share cropping, he said. Under this system Alabama law allowed the landowner to vote once for each sharecropper working his land. When the Negroes registered to vote for themselves the landowners lost this privilege and as a result the sharecroppers were put off the land.

"After that, I got letters to give readings at different places, and I've been at it since then," he said.

In describing his religious beliefs, he said that he didn't believe in a central being called God. "God is in every living thing," he said. "Religion is in everything we do."

"I tell a man that he is God so he can look in the mirror and see God; so he can look at everyone and see God," he said. "Then no man can hurt another. No man wants to hurt God."

Mr. English said many famous religious figures are con-men. "The only reason Billy Graham isn't in jail is because he has 'The Book' under him arm," he said.

Mr. English, who believes in reincarnation, said he was on earth 10,000 years ago doing the same thing he is doing today. "It takes that long to complete the cycle to another human body," he said. "A lot of people have a dog or a cat that they feed and even dress. It's really their relative."

Although Mr. English worked with CORE, he said he is not involved with the civil rights movement. "I obey the law," he said. "If the law says I can't do something, I don't do it. If a man tells me I can't eat in his place, I don't want to eat there. The food will sour in my stomach."

Mr. English is trying to raise enough money to go to Europe. Even though he doesn't speak a foreign language, he said he "gets his message across" when he goes abroad.

"When I go to another country, I go third class," he said, "I don't go as big brother. I live and work with the people. That way I can really have a conversation with them."

Adoption of Reardon Report
Could Limit Trial Reporting

CHICAGO (AP)—The American Bar association adopted new guidelines Monday to limit what the public will be told about pending criminal trials and arrests.

A plea by news executives for a year's delay while new studies were made was turned down by the association's House of Delegates by a vote of 176-68.

The controversial Reardon report was then adopted by voice vote.

The proposals now will go to an ethics committee which will blend them in during a revision of the ABA's Canons of Professional Ethics.

Though they are recommendations, they are likely to swiftly cut down what police will tell the press about criminal cases and will effectively limit what lawyers and judges say outside the courtroom.

Just before the vote, Chief Judge J. Edward Lombard of the U.S. Circuit Court in New York City told the delegates that if they accede to the plea for deferral, the news media would be back next year asking for still further studies.

The guidelines result from a study undertaken 39 months ago by a special ABA trial-press committee headed by Justice Paul C. Reardon of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts.

In the main, they would prevent the disclosure of information about prior criminal records, confessions or possible admissions of guilt, and the results of such tests as fingerprinting and lie detection.

The public would be told the name, age and family status of the accused, given a description of the arrest and the formal charge.

Club to Support McCarthy
Organizing on UM Campus

"We are organizing a Students for McCarthy Club because we feel that those who supported LBJ in 1964 as a 'peace candidate' have been betrayed and need an effective means to politically demonstrate their feelings," John Goers and Gary Decker told the Montana Kaimin yesterday.

An organizational meeting will be held tonight at 8 in Geology 107. All students are welcome, the men said.

According to Decker and Goers, graduate students in geology who are spearheading the movement on the UM campus, the purpose of the club is to "make Montanans aware that there is a way to support Eugene McCarthy in the Montana primary June 5."

Eugene McCarthy has offered a reasonable solution to the Vietnam War. We believe that he also can provide the needed emphasis for this country's domestic programs," they said.

The aim of Democrats for McCarthy, a group recently formed in Missoula, and Students for Mc-Carthy is to elect a majority of McCarthy-pledged precinct chairmen from the most heavily populated counties in the state, Goers said. The counties' representation at the state Democratic convention is based on population. In the June 5 primary, each precinct elects one man and one woman to represent it at the state convention.

As possible projects for the Students for McCarthy Club, Goers suggested:

—Registration of McCarthy Democrats.

—Organization of Students for McCarthy Clubs on other Montana campuses.

—Encouraging out-of-town students to meet with their hometown Democratic leaders to develop support for McCarthy.

—Presenting speakers and films promoting McCarthy to UM students and faculty.

—Distributing "McCarthy for President" promotional materials.

—Letting the people know who the McCarthy-pledged candidates for chairman are in each precinct.

Senator Urges
U.S. to Negotiate

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP)—A member of the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee told a University of Idaho symposium last weekend that the U.S. must decide "definitely and irrevocably to negotiate disengagement" from the Vietnam War.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., spoke to a Borah Foundation symposium.

Long a critic of U.S. policies in Vietnam, Gore said "we are destroying the country we profess to be saving" in the present course of action in Vietnam.

"The further tragedy is that we are also seriously damaging—if we are not in danger of destroying—ourselves."

He said that, because of the war, the U.S. is squandering the lives of its young men, diverting resources from domestic needs, ruining its relations with other nations and taking a chance of "transforming the American dream into a nightmare."

Metcalf's Bill Must Become Law

The time has come for an end to big business domination of Montana.

The 15 per cent rate increase request filed by the Montana Power Co. last week with the Montana Public Service Commission is the most flagrant abuse of the utility consumer yet attempted by that company.

J. E. Corette, Butte, chairman of the board, said extraordinary expense increases for the company during the past three years prompted the request.

The only thing extraordinary about this outrageous request is the audacity with which the Montana Power Co. is trying to abuse its customers. The bill of a residential electric customer using 250 kilowatt-hours would jump from $6.95 per month to $8.45. A residential gas customer using 15,000 cubic feet per month faces an increase from $11.10 per month to $13.98.

How can this happen?

The reasons are numerous and complex, but one thing is patently clear. A recent Investment Bankers Association report terms utility accounting practices "completely inadequate" with "a greater lack of comparability than at any time since 1933."

In short, it is now nearly impossible to make comparisons of utility performances, let alone find out who owns them, works for them and where much of the money goes.

Montana Sen. Lee Metcalf, who with his executive assistant, Vic Reinemer, wrote "Overcharge," a book criticizing practices of utilities, has introduced in the Senate a bill which would require them to report and publish more information about their operations.

It is intended, he said, "to help regulators carry out the large tasks assigned them by legislators, to provide the public with competent representation before regulators, to work hardship on no utility and to realize, in the utility area, the rights of consumers enunciated by President Kennedy and reaffirmed by President Johnson—the right to be informed, the right to choose, the right to safety and the right to be heard."

The bill would not decrease the responsibility of the state regulatory agency, although in Montana's case this would be the wisest thing to do, but rather it would require the utilities to provide customers with all the information to which they are entitled and give them a voice before the regulatory commissions.

The bill also would authorize a grant program to finance university studies of regulatory matters.

That requiring utilities to publish full information about their payrolls might raise a few eyebrows was proved recently in Virginia where the Virginia Electric and Power Co. released the names of its attorneys at the prodding of the Richmond Times Dispatch. It was found that several state legislators were on the company payroll.

If the Senator's bill is enacted, as it most certainly should be, the conflicts of interest it would expose in Montana probably would make the Virginia case look like a child with his hand in a cookie jar.

'Anonymoose' Columnist Joins Montana Kaimin

BY ANONYMOOSE

Montana Kaimin Columnist

Hello Campus! I am a friendly moose on the loose, turned Kaimin columnist. I have been roving the mountains around Missoula ever since I wandered from my home in Oregon, and for the past few years I have been observing some of the antics the students, faculty and administrators at UM have perpetrated.

Finally I hired an interpreter and decided to tell you about the campus as seen through the eyes of a moose.

As I look across campus, I have noticed how the students' style of clothing changes according to the season of campus. At the foot of Mt. Sentinel I see students walking in and out of an old building with pine trees carved on its sides.

These students look like the hunters who harass me every fall, and now that I have seen these people on campus I know why I have so much trouble evading them. These students are undaunted by the winter weather. Their big, heavy logging boots anchor them against the wind, while their red and black checkered jackets flap in the breeze. I've never seen one of them fall on the ice—with those boots it must be impossible for their feet to slip from under them!

In the middle of campus there is a building which must be where the students congregate. On sunny days, girls or boys (I can't tell which), sit outside for hours on the benches, contemplating each other's jewelry. I can't figure out why many of the boys have beards, I have a small goatee under my chin that I wish I could get rid of—it tickles.

Down on the far side of campus, across from the piano-shaped building, the students have a completely different look. I think the modern, red brick building must be a special school, because I never see these students anywhere else except around that one building. These people are always dressed in suits and laden with huge, thick books. They must be the campus bookworms—there should be a law against them!

Scattered over the campus I keep seeing groups of students in look-alike jackets, each little group has its own special colors, but no two groups are alike. It certainly seems strange to see girls in what looks to me like letterman jackets. The groups of students always head down the streets to big houses away from campus.

Recently, I have noticed girls walking out of one of the men's houses close to campus, soaking wet. I wonder why the girls go to that house to take showers, clothes and all?

On many days this winter, my heart has leapt when I saw people walking across campus with what looks like sprouting antlers. Much to my disappointment these people are carrying only long, flat boards on their shoulders. I also have seen these boards on the tops of cars. Carrying those boards around must be a winter fad, but it certainly looks like a hard way to gain status.

My interpreter is beginning to look like one of those snow sculptures the living groups built, so I had better roll him back down the hill to the Kaimin office. Until he comes again, remember to smile at Mt. Sentinel, Big Moose may be watching YOU.

College May Die, Haarr Contends

BY LOREN HAARR
ASUM President

Tonight at 8 in the Activities Room of the Lodge, the final organizational meeting of the experimental college will be conducted. I am pleased with the results of our early efforts. In response to my letter to the faculty, the following people have expressed a desire to help out: Philip Hess, "Still Photography Workshop," Steven McGuinness, "Traditional American Music," Gordon Bryan, "Drug Education," and Robert Zimmerman, "Effects of Modern Living on Mental Health."

Wayne Pace of the speech department also has expressed an interest in something like "To Say What You Mean."

The rest is up to the students. This meeting decides the fate of the experimental college. If you want to see it happen, bring your mind and body at 8.

AWS Needs Help, Coed Observes

To the Kaimin:

Dear AWS,

I can understand your budgeting problem after Central Board cut your allowance, and certainly AWS is too important to the college coed to become a sub-committee of ASUM. But is passing out pamphlets with the major purpose hidden in the last sentence and a sly signing of personally handed out ballots democratic representation of University women?

Although the Kaimin published several notices supposedly to notify Missoula girls, off-campus and married students, this so-called democratic allocation of student money was not published well enough. If your energy lies in your committees, then the Public Relations and Publicity committees need vitamins.

If AWS wants the support of the University women, you should stop trying to conduct sweeping campaigns and do something-like conduct a democratic vote!

McDermid Says Medicine Costly

To the Kaimin:

What happens when one suffers eye inflammation? I mean the legitimate kind, the kind resulting from reading strain, not one from many pitchers the night before. Well, you go to the Health Center in hopes of receiving eye drops and with the idea that the ten dollars you paid in Health Service fees through registration will cover it. You tell the doctor your symptoms and he looks into your eyes, writes out a prescription, and tells you to go downstairs to receive your medicine.

You go below and end up receiving more medicine than you figured—about $1.90 worth!

SPORTSCOPE

BY CHUCK JOHNSON
Sports Writer

As the Grizzly fans filed out of the Adams Field House after the Bobcats had edged Montana 62-60 on a last-second hook shot by Jack Gillespie, many were muttering about Gillespie's "lucky shot."

In truth, however, the 18-foot hook shot was not lucky. It is a shot that Gillespie has mastered. In Bozeman on Jan. 19, when MSU won 83-79, Gillespie made eight hooks. Not only did he hit the right-handed hookers, but he also sunk a few left-handed shots.

He made only three hooks against the Tips, including the tie-breaker. The 6-9 junior scored 12 of his 18 points in the first half. In the second half, however, the Tips unveiled a special defense designed to stop Gillespie. UM center Don Parsons played Gillespie one-on-one all of the time. But when the ball was thrown to Gillespie, the nearest forward would move in and double team him. This defense seemed to fluster Gillespie, because he could not shoot his favorite shot—the hook. Without his hook shot, Gillespie is a run of the mill center, for he does not have a good jump shot or good inside moves.

The strategy was working to perfection as the Grizzlies took a 47-46 lead with 7:45 left on Steve Brown's free throw. For a short period, it looked like Montana would run the Cats off the floor.

With over six minutes left, MSU forward Don Luce hit two jumpers when he was left open because of the double teaming of Gillespie. Montana State then reeled off seven straight points.

But the Grizzlies, spurred on by a partisan crowd, fought back. Stan Yoder came off the bench and hit two baskets in the waning minutes. Max Agather, whose hustle was unmatched by anyone, made a jumper with 14 seconds remaining to tie the game 60-60.

The Bobcats immediately called a time-out and Coach Roger Craft drew up a play that was designed to get Luce free for the last shot. As it happened, Luce was covered and Gillespie got the ball instead.

American Olympians to Enter World Competitions in Europe

GENOBE, France (AP)—America's figure skaters, speed skaters and skiers moved on to new world tests Monday as French workmen nailed up the coffin of the 10th Winter Olympic Games.

The United States' lone gold medalist, dazzling Peggy Fleming of Colorado Springs, Colo., led a strong contingent to Geneva, Switzerland where she will try for her third world championship Feb. 27-March 3.

After she wins it—regarded a certainty—she is expected to sign a pro contract that may bring her $500,000 over the next five years.

Also at Geneva, Timothy Wood of Bloomfield Hills, Mich. beaten out of the Olympic title by a fraction of a point, will attempt to restore America's world supremacy among men figure skaters.

To do it, he will have to beat out Wolfgang Schwärz of Austria winner of the gold medal here, and Emmerich Danzer, also of Austria, world champion for the last two years.

Janet Lynn, the 14-year-old Rockford, Ill., girl who is rated a future champion, and Tina Noyes, the cute red-head from Arlington, Mass., will be other ladies contenders. Gary Visconti of Detroit and Scott Allen of Smoke Rise, N.J., will join Wood as men threats.

The hard-luck Alpine skiers who failed to win a single medal are breaking up into two delegations for World Cup competition at Chamonix, France, and Oslo, Norway.

The more experienced members of the team—Bill Kidd, Jim Huega, Suzanne Chaffee and Sandra Shellworth—will be at Chamonix for downhill tests Saturday and Sunday.

The younger team members—Dennis McCoy, Kiki Cutter and Judy Nagel—will compete at Oslo, also Saturday and Sunday.

Two members of the successful speed skating team will go to Göteborg, Sweden, for the world speed skating championships this weekend.

The men's intramural ski meet has been rescheduled for Feb. 25, at Snow Bowl. Registration will be from 9-11:30 a.m. and races will begin at noon. Rosters must be turned in at room 116 in the Field House by 5 p.m. Wednesday.

All teams must furnish one gate keeper for the race. Without a gate keeper teams will be disqualified.

Women Skiers Place Fourth

The UM women's ski team placed fourth in overall events at the Northwest Intercollegiate Ski Meet for women, in Penticton, British Columbia, last weekend.

Bev Burns, a UM junior from Pasco, Washington, placed second out of 24 racers in the combined slalom and giant slalom events. Lila Burns placed eleventh and Debbie Hayden took twenty-first.

The University of Washington women's ski team took top honors at the meet, Oregon State was second and University of Idaho was third.

Land Swap May Solve Glasgow Base Problem

HELENA—A possible federal-state land swap, hopefully free of time-consuming governmental red tape, was set up Monday as a way to speedily clear federal title to Glasgow Air Force Base.

The move to have the $100 million base ready for possible civilian use on June 30 when the Defense Department is scheduled to abandon it was proposed by Donald F. Bradford, the department's director of economic adjustment.

Bradford said, "We're trying to find productive civilian uses for Glasgow AFB."

He stressed the importance of the federal government being able to offer clear title to all the buildings and land involved.

Bradford explained that the runway and cantonment area of the base are on land lease from the state. And, he said, much of the rest is owned in fee or leased from federal agencies, such as the Bureau of Land Management.

He described the facility as "a hodgepodge of land ownership" and said lack of a clear title could "possibly preclude some of the best uses."

It was at this point that Bradford suggested the land swap as one of the best ideas looked at thus far to expedite a clear title.

State Land Commissioner Mons L. Teigen and other state spokesmen—James B. Patten for Gov. Tim Babcock and Donald A. Garritty for Atty. Gen. Forrest H. Anderson—assured Montana's cooperation.

Bradford indicated he doesn't expect either side to try to drive a hard bargain in the exchange of state land on the base for federal land outside of it.

Garritty noted that "legally, we have to get land of equal value."

UM Debate Team Wins Tournament

A UM debate team of Chris Wortman and Susan Rowberry won first place with an undefeated record at the Wyoming Forensic Tournament at Rocky Mountain College in Billings last week.

Wortman and Rowberry defeated a Montana State University team in the final debate to win UM's first-place in debate competition this year.

Allen Sehestedt and Jeff Minckler won third place losing to MSU in the semi-finals, while Joe Batts and Lana Richards lost to the same team in the quarter-finals and placed fourth.

UM had the best overall percentage of wins capturing sixteen of twenty debates.

UM debaters who placed in the individual competition included Miss Richards, fourth in oratory and Mike Higgins, fourth in humorous impromptu.

Ten schools from Montana, Wyoming, North Dakota and South Dakota attended the speech meet.

Despite fiendish torture dynamic BIC Duo writes first time, every time!

BIC's rugged pair of stick pens wins again in unending war against ball-point skip, clog and smear. Despite horrible punishment by mad scientists, BIC still writes first time, every time. And no wonder. BIC's "Dynamite" Ball is the hardest metal made, encased in a solid brass nose cone. Will not skip, clog or smear no matter what devilish abuse is devised for them by sadistic students. Get the dynamic BIC Duo at your campus store now.
